DETAILED ACTION

Continued Examination Under 37 CFR 1.114

1. A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e), was filed in this application after final rejection. Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e) has been timely paid, the finality of the previous Office action has been withdrawn pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114. Applicant's submission filed on December 4, 2002 has been entered.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

3. Claims 1, 9, 11-18, and 20-22 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Balch et al. (US Pat. 6,331,441). The reference discloses a small molecule universal array comprising a plurality of wells, wherein each well comprises a plurality of biosites. Each biosite comprises only one species of immobilized small molecule, and at least one biosite has a small molecule differing from a second biosite. Each well may comprise up to four biosites, wherein each biosite comprises a different immobilized molecule (Cols. 39-40). Biosite deposition may occur with the use of capillaries. Multiple capillaries may be used to dispense small volumes simultaneously to a numerous biosite (Col. 12 and Figs. 4-4b). High-density probe arrays covering the bottom surface of the microplate wells can then be printed, wherein the printing pattern may not be precise (Col. 13).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

6. Claims 10 and 19 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Balch et al. (US Pat. 6,331,441) in view of Cherkuri et al. (US Pat. 5,980,704).

Balch et al. teach an array, as previously discussed. However, the reference does not teach the use of channels to drain excess liquid.

Cherkuri et al. teach a cassette/fluid array (device tray) including micron-sized reservoirs, connected microchannels (fluid delivery system), and reaction cells etched into a substrate. The reference further teaches the use of overflow feeds that control the reagent fluid level. The level of fluid is stabilized by draining excess fluids into these overflow feeds.

Art Unit: 1641

It would have been prima facie obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to use the overflow feeds of Cherkuri et al. with the device of Balch et al. because draining excess liquid allows for greater assay efficiency and accuracy, as more precise control of assay parameters is obtained.

Response to Arguments

7. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1 and 9-22 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Conclusion

Claims 1 and 9-22 are rejected.

Reference: Giuliano et al. is cited as art of interest for teaching a system for cell-based screening.
